STC to build 18,000 SQ FT Office Addition for Kaeser Compressors

Richmond, VA –

Scott Thomas Construction's (STC) Richmond office announced today that it was awarded a contract to construct an 18,000 square foot office addition for Kaeser Compressors. The two-story addition, which will be built adjacent to Kaeser's existing 88,914 square foot facility, is located at 511 Sigma Drive in Fredericksburg, VA.

STC will break ground in mid-May and will complete the addition in spring of 2009. The new structure, which was designed by McKinney & Company of Ashland, VA, features an energy efficient HVAC system and raised access flooring. "Scott Thomas Construction was thorough and detailed in their approach to our specific criteria," said Frank Mueller, Executive Vice President of Kaeser. "We are more than confident in their ability to meet the unique challenges of our facility's addition."

The Richmond office is lead by Senior Regional Leaders, Jason Ragolia and Alex Blanton. Ragolia will lead the construction on this project. He commented, "We were pleased to be selected for this project and we are looking forward to working with Kaeser Compressors and McKinney & Company." Blanton, responsible for all pre-construction activities on the Kaeser addition added, "This is an excellent opportunity for our rapidly growing Richmond office that further demonstrates the diverse group of clients that our team will serve."

STC also recently broke ground on a 7,200 SF structure located in Winchester Greens, in Chesterfield, VA. The mixed-use building is expected to be completed in late July.

STC's Richmond office opened late last year and is located at 1506 Willow Lawn Drive, Suite 205. Serving a wide range of commercial construction clients, STC's Richmond pre-construction and construction teams are lead by Alex Blanton and Jason Ragolia. They can be reached at 804-612-1585.
